RIDE TO SUPPORT MATERNAL-CHILD HEALTH

We believe that every mother deserves to have the best pregnancy, birth, and parenting experience possible.

Our Maternal-Child Health program provides a range of medical and supportive services that promote maternal and child health and wellness from pregnancy through childbirth and beyond. Our team of lactation trained nurses can visit seven days a week, including holidays. Services include lactation support and consultations, medical care and assessments through pregnancy and after the baby is born, and education on issues ranging from making the transition back to work, child development, and sleep habits. Families can have visits in the comfort of their own home, and sometimes avoid going out for additional visits.

Our Maternal-Child Health team of lactation trained nurses is available to care for Central Vermont mothers and their children, regardless of a person's ability to pay for care or their insurance status. Our number one goal is to ensure that women and children are safe, comfortable, and have the supports they need to thrive. Our nurses connect families with a wide range of community supports. We know that the benefits of early intervention last long into a person's life, and our Maternal-Child Health team is committed to supporting the needs of Central Vermont families.
